Money-making apps worth downloading

We've divided the Android and iPhone apps that can make you money into 5 categories:

- Surveys. Take a few minutes to complete a paid survey. You share your opinion on a product or service to earn. You aren't going to make hundreds of pounds, but a few to spare might be a nice addition to your monthly budget.
- Simple jobs aggregators. You can deliver food, walk dogs or be a babysitter. Your income depends on how much time you want to spend on a task.
- Sell your stuff. A good old-fashioned way to make some money is to sell something you don't need. With these apps, you can do so swiftly and easily.
- Cashback apps. By making purchases in either online or offline shops, restaurants, petrol stations etc. that are partners of the program, you can get cashback of up to 50%.
- Social networks. Popular bloggers can make money with the help of an ordinary social media account. We'll go into detail about how they do this below.

Social networks that make money

Instagram, Youtube, Medium and Facebook are the most popular social networks today that let you monetise your content.

On Youtube, if you post quality videos regularly that get at least around 50-100,000 views a month, you can make a sum that can sustain you during a difficult period.

- Also, if you have many subscribers, you can advertise products and other bloggers and make money from that as well. The same principle applies to Instagram and Facebook. Income from ads is one of the most significant revenue sources of many popular bloggers.

On Medium, they have their own scheme of monetisation based on the number of reads you get. If you deliver high-quality content, you will definitely be noticed and rewarded. So, if you're a creative person who likes to take beautiful photos, make videos or write, you might want to consider being a blogger to make money out of these apps.

Now you know about the best money-making apps in the UK in 2019. Good luck with earning some extra cash!
